

foraus - Foreign Policy Forum

is recruiting, as per the earliest date possible (or by arrangement) in a voluntary capacity, a new

Co-Head of the programme on “International cooperation and sustainable development”

The independent think tank foraus publishes science-based policy recommendations in the form of discussion papers, policy briefs and blog posts, and organizes high-level debates with the aim of creating innovative solutions for the foreign policy of tomorrow. foraus was founded in 2009 and is based on a unique grassroots model with several hundred volunteers in Switzerland and abroad.

Foreign policy is your passion and you would like to use your knowledge and creative ideas to actively shape the politics of tomorrow? For the programme "International cooperation and sustainable development", we are looking for a volunteer co-programme leader who is interested in foreign policy and brings expertise in the areas of Sustainable Development Goals and international cooperation (especially cooperation with the private sector and/or new actors such as foundations or China as well as impact measurement). In terms of content, the programme covers aspects of Swiss and international development policy. This includes analysing and commenting on new topics and trends in the context of the SDGs and international cooperation, assessing national and international policies and approaches, as well as events on the international stage, whether in other countries or at the multilateral level.

Concrete priorities are set by the Co-Heads of the programme and the Board. A link to other programmes and regional groups for joint projects is desired.

As Co-Head of the programme

- you initiate and issue publications together with your fellow Heads of programme and foraus members and whilst using your expertise to ensure the relevance and quality of the products,
- you are jointly responsible for the strategic and content-related planning of the program,
- you are available for media inquiries,
- you maintain a thematic network with universities, policy makers and administration,
- you co-organize events with regional groups or other programmes,
- you are responsible for a strong thematic community that goes beyond language borders,
- you take part in the monthly action calls and the bi-annual foraus retreat,
- you are in close contact with the Zurich and Geneva offices.

We offer you an exciting environment to grow your network and gain unique experience in an innovative think tank.

We look forward to receiving your application with a curriculum vitae and a cover letter by 01.07.2022, to fabian.ottiger@foraus.ch. For further information please do not hesitate to contact us.

foraus is committed to promoting diversity and balance in the team and wants to offer applicants of all religions, backgrounds and genders the same opportunity. A foraus membership is a prerequisite for this position, but can be acquired subsequently with a few clicks here.